Today includes a long list of injuries for the Ravens. There are ten players on the full injury report list. Left guard Alex Lewis and right tackle James Hurst were not at practice today due to previous injuries. Rookie center Bradley Bozeman (calf) did not participate in practice Customized Baltimore Ravens Jerseys , either. The rest of the list includes left tackle Ronnie Stanley (ankle), cornerbacks Marlon Humphrey (thigh) and Brandon Carr (NIR), linebackers C.J. Mosley (thigh), Tim Williams (ankle), and safety Tony Jefferson (hamstring). A surprise addition was running back Alex Collins who had limited participation at practice Wednesday, due to a foot ailment. One player that was unexpectedly not practicing today was safety Tony Jefferson, who appeared on the injury report with a hamstring issue. On Sunday, against the Panthers, Jefferson totaled seven tackles. Another player that was not at practice Authentic Mark Andrews Jersey , but not surprisingly on the injury report, was linebacker Tim Williams, who was wearing a boot in the locker room on Wednesday, according to Jeff Zerebic of The Athletic. He will most likely be held out of the game against the Steelers on Sunday. The Steelers injury report is half of what the Ravens have. Their injuries include linebacker Bud Dupree (illness), center Markice Pouncey (NIR), safety Cody Sensabaugh (toe) and quarterback Ben Roethlisberger, which was a "coaches decision." Roethlisberger reportedly has a fractured finger on his non-throwing hand. When asked if Roethlisberger was preparing for the game this week earlier today, coach Mike Tomlin said that he does not "anticipate it being an issue, because it wasn't an issue in the second half of the game last week." Last week against the Browns Authentic Maurice Canady Jersey , Roethlisberger went 10-18 for 121 yards in the second half. Right tackle Marcus Gilbert returned to practice today. Gilbert suffered a knee injury last week and did not participate in the win against the Browns on Sunday. Defensive end Sam Hubbard dreamed about chasing Ravens, Steelers and Browns quarterbacks around the field someday. Early in the Bengals' first prime time game of the season, the rookie sacked Joe Flacco for a key play in Cincinnati's decisive start. The third-round pick from Cincinnati has a lot of company in the up-and-coming category. The Bengals (2-0) are getting the biggest plays from some of their newest players, especially on a defense that has given up a lot of yards but forced decisive turnovers at the end. The young players were expected to add depth at the start of the season, but they've wound up changing the course of games. "It's very encouraging," said end Carlos Dunlap , the third-oldest player on the defense at age 29. "I feel this year more than any, we have a 1A and 1B of pass rushers and run stoppers." And, so far Womens John Brown Jersey , playmakers who stepped into starring roles well ahead of expectations. In the season opener, Andrew Luck was driving the Colts to what would have been a winning touchdown when second-year safety Clayton Fejedelem stripped tight end Jack Doyle of the ball at the Cincinnati 15-yard line and returned it for a touchdown and a 34-23 win . Fejedelem was in the game because veteran safety Shawn Williams was ejected in the first quarter for a hit on Luck. Fejedelem wound up playing alongside rookie safety Jessie Bates. The Bengals' 34-23 win over the Ravens on Thursday night featured more important moments from newcomers. Hubbard's sack set up a Ravens punt during a 21-point Cincinnati the defense's 85 snaps. "We were coming in waves all night," Hubbard said. "Mike went down early, and we stepped up and rallied together. Whoever was fresh was going out there and trying to make a play. We just kept coming and just trying to wear them down." With linebacker Preston Brown hurt and Vontaze Burfict suspended, third-year linebacker Nick Vigil played all 85 snaps and led with nine tackles and one pass batted away. Young players were involved in everything. Bates was on the field for all but one snap and had a first-quarter interception that set up the Bengals' first touchdown. Second-year ends Carl Lawson and Jordan Willis were on the field for 53 and 49 snaps, respectively. Second-year tackle Ryan Glasgow played 28 snaps. The decisive play came as the Ravens were trying to put together a tying drive with just under three minutes left, trailing 31-23. Williams hit Flacco as he tried to pass, causing a fumble that Willis recovered at the Ravens 29-yard line. Randy Bullock's field goal with 2:25 left sealed it. Luck threw for 319 yards in the opener and the Colts piled up 380 yards overall. Flacco threw for 376 yards and the Ravens had 425 in all. The Bengals made enough plays to offset their youthful mistakes. "The young guys are believing," said seventh-year cornerback Dre Kirkpatrick. "I've got to admit Womens Hayden Hurst Jersey , I used to be inconsistent, being a little selfish, but you've got to grow up. You've got young guys that are watching. They're looking, and I don't want to give off the wrong message." The Bengals are off to only their fifth 2-0 start under coach Marvin Lewis, who is in his or younger. So far, it's passing the test. "Everything's new around here now, and it's a great feeling," Kirkpatrick said. BULLOCK EXTENSION: Bullock signed a two-year extension on Tuesday through the 2020 season. He was in the final year of a two-year deal. He's made 27 of 30 field-goal attempts and 45 of 47 extra-point attempts since joining the Bengals during the 2016 season. He has made all of his four field-goal attempts and all eight extra-point attempts this season.
