Let's talk football http://www.panthersfootballauthentic.com/da\_norris-searcy-jersey-authentic , y'all! You know the drill. This is now an open thread! The Panthers have issued today's injury report for their Week 5 game against the Giants, and there's some encouraging news to report--Trai Turner and Curtis Samuel were both on the practice field for the Panthers. According to early reports Womens David Mayo Jersey , the only players who took the day off were Julius Peppers and Greg Olsen. Getting Turner back at right guard would be huge for Carolina, as his absence has been felt for the last few weeks while he was in the concussion protocol. Seeing Samuel get some live action is also good news Womens Devin Funchess Jersey , and it would be nice to see him featured in the offense this week to give Cam Newton another weapon to use on Sunday. Here's the full injury report for the Panthers: Panthers injury report Did not participate in practice TE Greg Olsen (foot) DE Julius Peppers (rest) Limited participation in practice None Full participation in practice DT Vernon Butler (shoulder) WR Damiere Byrd (knee) WR Curtis Samuel (medical illness) G Trai Turner (concussion) Practice Status Did not participate in practice = 0% of a player's normal repetitions Limited participation in practice = Less than 100% of a player's normal repetitions Full participation in practice = 100% of a player's normal repetitions Game Status Out = Player will not play Doubtful = Player unlikely to play Questionable = Uncertain if player will play
