

---

Subject: The Injuries keep piling up in the Bengals secondary.

Posted by linchao on Fri, 21 Dec 2018 01:35:26 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Shawn Williams is the most recent Bengal to exit Sunday's game against the Steelers. The safety has been ruled out with concussion. He had exited the game before the Bengals' goal line stand in the third quarter <http://www.bengalscheapstore.com/kevin-huber-jersey-cheap> , but he returned the next drive. Then he was run over by Pittsburgh running back James Conner. Following that, the trainers walked Williams back to the locker room where he was being looked at for a concussion. He was replaced by Clayton Fejedelem who was replacing Jessie Bates III. Bates returned to the game after being evaluated for a concussion himself. The Bengals are already thin in the secondary as William Jackson was already iffy to play coming into the game, Darqueze Dennard has been ruled out with a shoulder injury and Bates already leaving the game once already. We will update as more information becomes available. Ravens open as favorite over Bengals in Week 2 The Bengals are coming off an impressive road win over the Colts to begin the 2018 season. However, the Ravens were arguably the most impressive of any NFL team in the first week of action. They absolutely demolished the Bills en route to a 47-3 win Cheap Carlos Dunlap Jersey , which frankly was one of the biggest beatdowns the NFL has seen in recent memory. This isn't Alabama vs. the little sisters of the poor. The league is created in a way that promotes parity and competitive games when even the best teams face the worst teams. So when an NFL team beats another by 44 points, oddsmakers take notice, and they currently have Baltimore as a 1.5-point favorite over Cincinnati in Week 2. Now, it has to be pointed out that the Bengals have won seven of the last nine meetings

<http://www.bengalscheapstore.com/cordy-glenn-jersey-cheap> , and one of those losses was with A.J. Green out of the lineup. The other was with Ken Zampese still calling the offense, which is arguably worse than not having Green. The Bengals also went into Baltimore and knocked the Ravens out of the playoffs last season. On one hand, that gives you more confidence the Bengals can take care of business at home. On the other hand, the revenge factor is very real

<http://www.bengalscheapstore.com/clayton-fejedelem-jersey-cheap> , and the Ravens will be hell-bent on getting theirs on Thursday Night Football. Then again, you could argue the Bengals want some measure of revenge themselves for the 20-0 home embarrassment they suffered to Baltimore in Week 1 last season. The Bengals take pride in defending their home turf, and they'll be ready to ensure a repeat of 2017 doesn't happen in 2018. All told, I would give the Bengals an edge <http://www.bengalscheapstore.com/c.j.-uzomah-jersey-cheap> , but I'd only favor them by 1-1.5 points. Don't be surprised if the line moves a point or two by Thursday to make this a pick 'em. But if history has told us anything, don't pick Baltimore against a healthy Green and a competent offensive coordinator.

---